THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Bible Lesson for Christian Living
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Deuteronomy 10:18 19; Matthew 25: 31-46; James 2:14-17; I John 3:11-18.
Devotional Reading I John 3: 11, 14-18.

A Needy World

Lesson for June 7, 1964

Sharp readers will have noticed something about these columns since last April. They are all about "The Christian and . . ." even if there was no room for the whole title. First we thought about man-in-general in relation to the universe; then about the Christian in his family relations and with his neighbors; next about the Christian at work and at leisure. This was followed by the Christian in relation to government and to nationalism; and from now through June we consider our relation to the whole world.

The Top and the Bottom

A large order? Yes, indeed, staggeringly large. But two points run through all of this. One is that we are related to all these things. Christian and non-Christian alike. The difference between the Christian and the irreligious man is not that one has responsibility for his relationships and the other does not. The difference is that the Christian recognizes, even if too dimly, what his responsibilities are, and tries to do something about it. The other point is that a man's character, indeed his very existence as a human being, is measured in terms of his relationships. You don't put a man into a solitary cell to find out whether he is a good man; you turn him loose in the world of other people.

If you think of the people of this world as a pyramid, the name thing is true as is true of the pyramids in Egypt: there are very few stones in the top layers, compared with the enormous number of stones in the bottom layers. If you, reading this column, are an American and you are near the top of the human pyramid. You belong to a great "Have" nation, while below you are the millions of people who live in "Have-not" parts of the world.

Never Enough

People will say, Oh, why bother with the troubles of folks we can't see and can't help? People do seem to get on somehow, wherever they live. They grow up and have babies and they live to be old, don't they? Well, that's not quite true. Take the country people, millions of them in one country alone, India for example. The American who travels there is shocked by the large numbers of hungry-looking people he sees. Men and women do grow up, though infant mortality snips off the lives of many before they even get started. They grow up hungry; there is never quite enough food to go around. They wear clothes, yes, but such clothes as you wouldn't put down for a prize cow or cat to lie on. They eat food you would throw away.

How Can One Person Help?

The world is so big, and there are so many needy people in it, that we often wonder, how can I possibly do any good? The answer is, to be sure you by yourself can't do much, and you wouldn't know what to do anyhow. But your government and your church are both working on this problem of a needy world. Every time you pay your taxes, you are helping to support such successful enterprises of good will as the Peace Corps and agricultural aid of many kinds in many nations. Every time you go to church, you are invited to share in what is being done by your denomination for the needy world. If you have a heart sympathetic enough to feel yourself neighbor and even brother to the multitudes at the bottom of the pyramid, the church has all sorts of suggestions. It has enterprises going right now that need your help. If you don't know, ask your minister. It may surprise him—but it will give him a chance to surprise you. And if you still don't care to help then read those Scripture passages again from Old Testament and New, and ask yourself: Can I honestly call myself a Bible-believing Christian?

Pastor Speaks

"No Other Gods"

In response to requests, I am planning to give some reflections upon the "The Commandments" or the "Decalogue" found in the 20th chapter of Exodus. One each week will be given until the ten have been covered. I suggest you clip them each week, and keep them to consider as a unit after the last one is given.

Near Murphy, N.C., on the side of the mountain, in letters taller than a man, are huge white stones spelling out these ten sayings. Driving through Mount Siani reveal the surprising fact that upon which Moses and the prophets, and non-Christian economics economics are based. Involve the whole duty of man and of course must be considered in the light of Christ and His atonement on the cross. Someone has said that "the fiery law is the most perfect expression of God's love for his people" The poet says; "Laws do not put the least restraint

Upon our freedom, but maintains it;

Or, if it does, 'tis for our good. To give us freer latitude; For wholesome laws preserve as free

By stinting our own Liberty."

This first law". . . no other gods before me . . ." actually means there are no other gods to be worshipped in addition to Jehovah. This brings us face to face with our object of worship, reverence and labor.

The Hebrew idiom "before me" means before my face, besides me, or in place of me. These laws are given against the backstop of polytheism (many gods) and are amazingly relevant to our times. They are the answer to the gods of materialism proffered by science and technology, and humanism, which is the glorification of the ability of man to live unto himself.

What has these saying to do with 20th century sophistication? For one thing, supreme allegiance is to be given to God. The word "Jehovah" comes from a combination of three Hebrew words or characters. It means "He was, He is being, and He will ever be." This not only rules out objects of Him in our worship, but any mental attachments to other ideas in preference to Him. He is to be supreme in our Allegiance.

This commandment also says that supreme love us due Him. He is to be be first in my love, loyalty and devotion. That which I love most I give most of my attention. There are to be "no other gods" ahead of the Lord, besides the Lord. In addition to the Lord

Among the "theu shalts and thou shalt nots"

Is one supreme law dare we forget.

"No other gods before me, it says,

And every disobedient soul has hell to pay.

Supreme allegiance to our God it states.

As a token of our love, and not of hate.

This means that Moloch and Mammon must go

Or else we will surely reap what we sow.

Our supreme love is a part of that law.

When Jesus gave interpretation, he saw

This fact and stated it ture.

If my life is rightly related to him anew.

My soul, from the Mountain of Siani and Calvary too.

Comes the Law of Justice and the Law of Love.

If only to Christ you will come in repentance true,

Next week the second commandment, "No other Graven Images" will be discussed. Be in your place Sunday at the church of your choice.
